At the convergence of information technology, information management, and healthcare is the exciting field of health informatics. Now more than ever, there is a need for health care professionals who can integrate and manage new technologies and data into their workflow.

17% projected job growth by 2024 much faster than the average for all occupations.

Clinical applications specialists have a 10-year projected job growth of 21%, making this one of CNN's Fastest-Growing Jobs in America.

Source: BLS.gov

$96,540 median annual salary for health services managers and health care administrators.

Source: BLS.gov

A hospital administrator earns an ‘A’ rating in terms of personal satisfaction making the position one of CNN’s Top 10 Best Jobs in America.

Source: CNN

46% of graduates with a master’s in nursing informatics have an annual salary greater than $100,000, up from 33% in 2014.

$128,075 average annual salary for a director of clinical informatics.

Source: AHIMA

$180,000 average annual salary for a Chief Clinical Information Officer (CCIO).

Source: AHIMA

$87,220 average annual salary for a healthcare systems analyst.

Source: BLS.gov

They train doctors and other medical staff on how to use new devices and incorporate them into their practice to better serve patients.